ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention provides a display unit that displays images on both the front and the rear surfaces and that displays images brightly without increasing the electrical power consumption. A liquid crystal display unit includes two liquid crystal cells, a backlight, which is interposed between the two liquid crystal cells and which emits light to the liquid crystal cells, and two reflective polarizers interposed between the backlight and each of the liquid crystal cells, respectively.